■ Output or Outcome * Within 1000 characters

The project results in a more informed and empowered citizenry with a strong understanding of democratic principles, rights, and responsibilities, leading to active civic engagement. Voter registration and turnout increase, alongside broader participation in local and national decision-making, fostering a more inclusive democracy. Community watchdog groups strengthen transparency and accountability, reducing corruption and improving governance. Youth, women, persons with disabilities, and marginalized groups gain greater representation and influence in democratic processes. Overall, democratic institutions are strengthened through increased public trust, participation, and sustained commitment to good governance and long-term national development.
